11/26/2018		MINUTE ORDER. The Court has considered the parties' positions, as set forth in 27 joint status report. The Court is not inclined to agree with plaintiff that good cause exists for allowing discovery regarding the adequacy of the defendants' search. That said, the Court will allow plaintiff to file a brief, no longer than 8 pages, regarding the propriety of allowing discovery by no later than December 7, 2018. The government is directed to respond by no later than December 21, 2018. The government's response shall not exceed 8 pages. The Court declines to set a summary judgment briefing schedule at this time. Signed by Judge Emmet G. Sullivan on 11/26/2018. (lcegs3) (Entered: 11/26/2018)

12/26/2018	31	REPLY re: 29 to Defendants' Memorandum in Response to Plaintiff's Response to Order of the Court filed by FREEDOM WATCH, INC.. (Klayman, Larry) Modified on 12/27/2018 (ztd). (Entered: 12/26/2018)
01/03/2019		MINUTE ORDER denying 29 Freedom Watch's request for discovery and/or in camera review. Freedom Watch's request is based on mere conjecture and is premature. As this Court stated in Judicial Watch v. Department of State , "[d]iscovery is rare in FOIA cases." ECF No. 73 at 8–9, 13–cv–1363 (citing Thomas v. FDA , 587 F. Supp. 2d 114, 115 (D.D.C. 2008))(noting that "discovery is an extraordinary procedure in a FOIA action")(allowing discovery because the plaintiff had raised a sufficient question as to the adequacy of the government's search). That said, discovery "should be permitted... when a plaintiff raises a sufficient question as to the agency's good faith" in responding to the FOIA request. Id. at 9 (citations omitted). Here, Freedom Watch has not raised a sufficient question as to the agency's good faith in responding to its FOIA request. Instead, it offers two speculative accusations. First, it suggests that a spokesperson for the Special Counsel's Office has been leaking grand jury information because he "secretly met" with a member of the press, as evidenced by the "chumminess" in emails between the spokesperson and the member of the press (that were produced to Freedom Watch). This accusation is unfounded. The Court has reviewed the emails and they do not corroborate Freedom Watch's claim. Indeed, friendliness in professional emails does not raise a sufficient question as to the agency's good faith. Second, Freedom Watch accuses the Department of Justice of bad faith for "conveniently" discovering a "technical glitch" at the last minute, causing it to re–run its search of responsive documents. However, there is no basis in reality to believe that this disclosure was, as Freedom Watch puts it, an "attempt to shield themselves from the public seeing evidence of their routinely leaking grand jury information to the media and other disclosures for their tactical motivations." When the government disclosed that it had discovered a problem that required it to re–run a search to ensure that it had found all responsive documents, the Court ordered the defendant to file a declaration explaining what happened and why the government had not discovered it earlier. See Sept. 17, 2018 Minute Order. The government filed a sworn declaration that satisfied the Court that the reason for the delay in production was benign. Moreover, as a result of the government discovering the technical difficulty, Freedom Watch may have received additional records to which it was entitled. Because the government's declarations must be "accorded a presumption of good faith, which cannot be rebutted by purely speculative claims," SafeCard Servs. v. SEC , 926 F.2d 1197, 1200 (D.C. Cir. 1991)(quotations omitted), the Court will not permit discovery at this stage of the proceedings. Additionally, in camera review is premature. Typically, discovery in the absence of bad faith or in camera review is permitted after summary judgment briefing. If Freedom Watch believes the government improperly withheld or redacted documents, it can explain its argument in its opposition to the defendant's motion for summary judgment. "If the Court agrees with Plaintiff that [the defendant] is not entitled to summary judgment, the Court shall reconsider Plaintiff's requests for discovery. However, the Court shall not permit any discovery to be taken until it has considered [the defendant's]... motion for summary judgment." North v. U.S. Dep't of Justice , 729 F. Supp. 2d 74, 7778 (D.D.C. 2010). In light of this Order, the parties are directed to file a joint status report recommending a summary judgment briefing schedule by no later than February 4, 2019. Signed by Judge Emmet G. Sullivan on 1/3/2019. (lcegs3) (Entered: 01/03/2019)
